A garden with God's blessing series

This Taiwanese camellia honey was collected at the beginning of the summer 2012 after the blooming season in late spring – an exquisite combination of nectar from the camellia and schima superba blossoms. A heart-shaped paper leporello, on the lid of the bulbous honey glass, unfolds into the shape of a decorative camellia blossom. Some of its white pages offer space for personal messages, while the outer blossom leaves feature a beautifully cut out flower pattern. This design also decorates the protective cardboard box.
